EASTERN NEWS.

Judge Hoadly's Recent Speech Places him in Hot Water.

SECOND TRIAL OF ERICSSON'S DESTROYER.

A Remarkably Speedy Trial in Kentucky—Father Hyacinthe Coming to America—Items of Interest.

A Minister's Fall From Grace.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—The Tribune prints a singular letter, addressed to the editor by J. G. Nobles, asking the insertion of his death notice, as he is about to drown himself. Another longer letter to Editor Buckley of the Christian Advocate, announcing the same intention, says: "No one but myself is blameable in any degree for this dreadful ending." He says he was successful in various schemes, but fell into evil company and habits, and is now utterly destitute. Inquiry at the Methodist Book Concern elicited the information that Nobles was formerly a Methodist minister, and that love of liquor caused his fall. He married an excellent woman, who partially reclaimed him. It is believed among his acquaintances that he has taken his life.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—The Post says: "The anxiety of the friends of the missing man was relieved by his appearance this morning at the house of friends, haggard and wretched looking, having, he said, wandered the streets all night. He said he had finally made up his mind to commit suicide, and had gone to the end of the North river pier with that purpose. He had even fastened a large stone around his neck to make the drowning more certain, but at the last his courage failed him, and he returned to the city. He had the stone in his possession when he reached the house. He is believed to be temporarily insane.

Second Trial of Ericsson's Destroyer.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—Much interest is felt among naval officers and others anxious for our coast defense, in the trial to-day of Ericsson's destroyer. Preparations have been for some time making, near Sandy Hook, for a full test of her wonderful power. Since the last trial, nearly three years ago, she has been greatly improved. The Times says there is reason to believe it has as great an advantage in destructive power and other requirements as the present methods and resources of naval warfare demand. The torpedoes weigh 1500 pounds and are shot from a gun of peculiar construction, which, after many experiments, Ericsson and his employes consider perfect. It is fired ten feet under water, and when discharged the two valves that form the mouth of the gun are forced apart automatically to let the torpedo pass out. The gunner gets his aid from a small lookout in front of the cabin, the latter being protected by heavy steel plate armor. The range is regulated by a wheel, like an ordinary steering wheel, which the gunner turns at pleasure. There are nine engines on board the craft, all under at least seven feet of water, and beyond reach of shot or shell. The destroyer is sixty feet long, and has cost upwards of $70,000.

New York Knights Templar.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—Columbian Commandery No. 1, Knights Templar, of this city, recently abandoned their contemplated pilgrimage to the triennial conclave of the knights, to be held at San Francisco next month. The original project having been given up it was proposed to make a party of such of the knights templar of the state who wished to attend the conclave of the grand encampment. Arrangements for the party are now nearly completed. The company will be known as the New York State Knights Templar battalion, and will consist of members of various commanderies in New York state, and many of the New England states, as well as New Jersey and Pennsylvania. The battalion will number seventy-five knights and their wives, and will leave New York August 7, at 8 A. M., by the Erie railroad and arrive at Chicago the next morning at the same hour. It will arrive at San Francisco August 16, occupying nine days in the trip, and permitting a stop at various points of interest along the route. A week will be spent at San Francisco to permit attendance at the exercises of the grand commandery, and to visit the wonders of California, and the party will arrive in New York on its return September 1.

Hoadly's Damaging Speech.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—Special Columbus, Ohio: "The speech of Judge Hoadly in this city last Saturday night was so weak that the democratic leaders, including the secretary of the state committee, endeavored to suppress it, fearing that a verbatim report, if published, would weaken their candidate for gubernatorial honors. A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, has secured the notes of the shorthand reporter, who, after the conclusion of the speech, insisted on reading his notes to Judge Hoadly, making the plea that the noise at times rendered it difficult to understand, and waiting until after midnight for his return. The correspondent sought in vain for a reporter who had not been near Hoadly. Subsequent action developed the fact that two members of the state committee had sufficient influence with the reporter, who is a democrat, to induce him to destroy the whole speech, which Hoadly might have to explain at a future time.

Court Martial of Col. Figes.

ST. PAUL, July 17.—The case of Colonel Guido Ilges, for duplicating pay accounts, began this morning. The court is composed of fifteen officers, Brevet Brigadier General E. P. Bradley presiding. The first witness was Joseph H. Speyer of the banking house of J. H. Speyer & Co., Washington, D. C., who testified to the signature of defendant upon two pay accounts, July and August, 1882, which passed through his bank. Major William Smith, paymaster at St. Paul, testified that the pay account of Colonel Ilges for August, 1882, and came to him from the bank of Minnesota as late as March, 1883; that he refused to pay until inquiry at Washington, because he had cashed pay accounts for later months, and could not understand how the month of August could have been overlooked. Witness wrote to the paymaster general and learned that the account of Colonel Ilges of August had been paid.

A Remarkably Rapid Trial.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 17.—This afternoon, as the jury in the Cooper case retired, the Emmet guard escorted Samuel Bulger from the jail to the court house, amid a great crowd of people on the streets, where he was to be arraigned for rape. In the court room the indictment was read to him. His attorney told him not to criminate himself, unless his mind was perfectly clear. He replied that his mind was perfectly clear, that he was guilty, and he wanted to be hanged legally, and not by a mob, and wanted to cause as little trouble as possible in the case. A jury was impaneled and he repeated his confession before them, and in ten minutes they returned a verdict of guilty, with a sentence of death. Bulger received the verdict unmoved, and was returned to jail in one hour from the time he was taken out.

Cyclone in the Northwest.

CHICAGO, July 17.—[Special.]—Special reports indicate storms at various points in the northwest. At Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin, this afternoon, a cyclone struck the north part of the city, wrecking nearly 100 buildings. Damage, $40,000. Several persons were injured.

At Danville, Illinois, a heavy wind and rain seriously damaged buildings, shade trees, etc.

At Decatur, Illinois, the heaviest wind and rain storm for many years prevailed, and oats and wheat were beaten into the ground.

Pere Hyacinthe will probably lecture in New York and elsewhere in this country.

The Saengerfest.

BUFFALO, July 17.—At the second and third sessions of the saengerfest to-day the attendance was large, particularly at the evening performance. The enthusiasm is unabated. The city is very lively with bands with different organizations parade the streets after the concerts. The different headquarters for the societies are crowded night and day.

[illegible], Kan., July 17.—Walter Brown of Kansas City, representing heavy capitalists, made the largest purchase of public lands to-day ever made in this state, [illegible] acres, at $[illegible] per acre, in the counties of [illegible] and Comanche, known as the Cherokee strip. They will fence the land, which is well watered and will carry cattle the year through without feed.

THE SENATORIAL STRUGGLE.

Matters Worse Mixed than Before Rollins Withdrew—Slim Chance for Chandler.

CONCORD, N. H., July 17.—[Special.]—The senatorial struggle is likely to prove interesting. All signs fail. Vigorous efforts are being made to-day by politicians and business men of the state to come to some agreement. A vigorous campaign against Wm. E. Chandler has been planned and unless his opponents are much mistaken, Chandler will find it necessary to resign his seat in the cabinet. As nearly as can be ascertained to-night an effort will be earnestly made Tuesday to unite upon some man who has not been prominent thus far in the fight. Some of the friends of Rollins are bitter against Chandler and accuse him of bad faith towards Rollins, while pretending to aid his cause. One man said to-day with a good deal of emphasis:

CHANDLER'S CHANCES SLIM.

"You may rest assured of one thing, and that is that Wm. E. Chandler will not be elected United States Senator by this legislature. We have done a good job in compelling Rollins to draw out, and we do not propose to permit another machine man to get the office. We want a good clean man, and will have him too."

The air is full of rumors to-night, and not the least important of which is that the democrats will turn over their strength to General Marston when he has developed sufficient strength to insure his election by the aid of democrats. It is not probable that the general will accept the office by any such arrangement if the democrats were likely to offer him their votes. It is also rumored that Chandler is gathering all the stragglers into his camp that he can get a hand on, and if he cannot be elected he will turn his strength over to some one who will agree to obey the voice of his master.

THE SITUATION LAST NIGHT.

CONCORD, July 17.—It is stated on the best authority to-night that Briggs will withdraw from the senatorial contest before a vote is taken to-morrow. His supporters will go largely to Chandler, Tappan and Marston. Chandler's friends claim his vote will reach to the neighborhood of eighty on the next ballot. Stevens' men have confidence to-night and have decided to vote for him through to-morrow at least. Ray is prominently spoken of as a dark horse, though he may not appear in the list to-morrow. Briggs' withdrawal is freely discussed to-night, some alleging it was in the interest of Chandler. This statement is denied by some of his most intimate friends. At a democratic caucus to-night about seventy were present, and the subject of a transfer to Gen. Marston, in case he received sixty votes or thereabouts, was discussed.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS.

OREGON AND TRANSCONTINENTAL REPORT.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—Advance sheets of the report of the directors of the Oregon and Transcontinental declare the holdings of the company of the Northern Pacific and Oregon Railway and Navigation Company stocks June 30, to be as follows: Northern Pacific, common, 162,791 shares; Northern Pacific preferred, 156,[illegible] shares; Oregon Railway and Navigation stock, including new stock, 128,000 shares. It sums up the available income and profits for 1883-84 as follows: Balance of profits brought forward from last year, $2,880,[illegible]; dividends on O. R. & N. stock, $1,190,262 05; estimated dividends on Northern Pacific preferred stocks, $[illegible]; total, $6,[illegible] 53. The report concludes: "Your board have deemed wise to increase the present rate of dividends until the company shall be in a position to reimburse your advances and to do without your assistance. The approaching completion of the roads will bring about this result before long, and there will appear to be no good reason why this company, which has no directly owned properties to preserve, should not give to its stockholders the benefit of all its incomes and profits."

THE TEXAS PACIFIC GRANT.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—Post: While there is every reason to believe the secretary of the interior will decide that the Southern Pacific railroad is not entitled to the land grant of the Texas and Pacific, the opponents of the transfer are resorting to every possible device to create an opposition to Huntington's plan. Among other extraordinary things, a paper was filed with the secretary of the interior purporting to be a report of interviews with several prominent persons, showing the dishonest origin and nature of the grant. When the contents became known to some of the persons mentioned they were indignant, and an attempt was made by the author of the report to withdraw it, but the secretary refused to let it go. Legal proceedings are threatened.

PROBABILITY OF FREIGHT RATES REDUCTION.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—The probability of a reduction in east bound freights is the chief topic in railway and grain circles, the latter strongly favoring the same declaring that business is paralyzed and that five cents per hundred pounds reduction would create a heavy movement in last year's corn crop, as well as new wheat.

WILL WAIT TILL SEPTEMBER.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Secretary Teller says the question of the transfer of the Texas Pacific land grant to the Southern Pacific railroad company will not be decided until September 1 and that he proposes to settle the matter himself, without referring it to the Attorney General for his opinion.

DENVER'S BIG SHOW.

Opening Day of the National Mining Exposition—A Brilliant Success.

DENVER, July 17.—This is a gala day in Denver, the occasion being the opening of the second annual exhibition of the National Mining and Industrial Exposition. From early morning the city has been thronged with visitors from all parts of the country. At sunrise people all over the city were busily engaged in decorating their buildings. Business generally was suspended. The ceremonies began at noon by forming an immense procession of carriages containing members of the board of trade, officers of the state and city governments and distinguished guests, followed by a representative procession of trades and industries, which passed through the principal streets to the exposition ground. Meanwhile a national salute of thirty-nine guns was fired by the Chaffee light artillery. Large crowds of people lined both sides of the streets along the line of march. At the exposition building an immense concourse of people had assembled. On the arrival of the procession the following exercises were had:

Prayer—Bishop Simpson of Philadelphia.

Address of welcome—In behalf of Colorado, Gov. Grant; on behalf of the city, Mayor Routt.

Oration—Hon. Warner Miller of New York.

Benediction—Rev. O. H. Marshall.

THE EXPOSITION DECLARED OPEN.

The order for starting the horse-power steam engine was given, and the exposition of 1883 was declared open by Hon. W. A. H. Loveland, president of the association.

The address of Senator Miller was a masterly effort and called forth unbounded applause. The day has been all that could be desired. The enthusiasm of the people was unbounded, and the opening exercises on the whole were a decided success. The exposition opens this year with most flattering prospects. Nearly all the important features of last year's exhibit remain, while many others are being added daily, and from nearly every state and territory in the union. Large annexes have become necessary to accommodate the increasing demand for space, and are now near completion. The main building is a massive structure, built of brick, 500x[illegible] feet, costing over $[illegible],000. While the youngest of the sisterhood of states, Colorado lays claim to being one of the first in enterprise and public spirit.

MORMONISM.

The Subject Attracting Much Attention—Denounced from the Pulpit.

CHICAGO, July 17.—[Special.]—Mormonism is becoming a favorite pulpit theme and particularly since the reported utterances of members of the commission who denounce the alleged immorality of the system and its growth. Yesterday, at a Lake Bluff campmeeting, near this city, which is largely attended, the subject was discussed in extenso. Rev. T. B. Hilton, who had a long residence in Utah, was the chief speaker. From what he had seen of Mormonism he was convinced that unless radical measures were taken at an early day to stamp it out, it would hold the balance of political power in the union. Perhaps no religion in this or any other country had such great elements of strength as Mormonism, owing to the complete plans of missionary work and colonization. These were sources of power and strength that would make the faith the most formidable enemy civilization had yet encountered, if they were not trampled upon.

A DEGRADING FAITH.

Theft, robbery and murder were advised by the priesthood, to which those of the faith were most obedient, as was proved by the investigation of the awful Mountain Meadow massacre. The faith was, in every way, degrading, especially the polygamous features of it. The religion now had absolute possession of Utah, and there was good reason to believe that before long they would control Idaho, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico if Christianity did not do all in its power. The first polygamy bill of 18[illegible] and the Edmunds bill of recent date, were practically dead letters, and nothing could be expected from them. The speaker's plan was to have the government establish a commission to investigate the condition of affairs in the territories, and induce Americans to establish schools in every city and hamlet where polygamy had secured a hold, and in that way drive it out. Education was the only thing that would ever obliterate the curse.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

JOHN M'CULLOUGH'S ILLNESS.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—John McCullough and William E. Gonner, his manager, arrived in New York last night from Quincy, Ill. The World's news that McCullough's health is so impaired that he has, by advice of his physicians, cancelled his professional engagements for next season, created the profoundest regret. Inquiries among his acquaintances best able to furnish information resulted in the most diverse opinions. One manager said McCullough had been slowly breaking down for some time with an insidious cerebral disorder. This statement was not corroborated by others, who said his weakness was the natural result of a severe fit of sickness, but that his mind was as vigorous as ever.

A DRUGGIST'S STORY.

Mr. Isaac C. Chapman, Druggist, Newburg, N. Y., writes us: "I have for the past ten years sold several gross of DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I can say of it what I cannot say of any other medicine. I have never heard a customer speak of it but to praise its virtues in the highest manner. I have recommended it in a great many cases of Whooping Cough with the happiest effects. I have used it in my own family for many years; in fact, always have a bottle in the medicine closet, ready for use."

Edward Spencer, journalist and author, died at Randallstown Tuesday.

PACIFIC COAST.

Exciting Wrestling Match Between Muldoon and Bibby.

WEINHARD'S BREWERY AT DAYTON BURNED.

Accident to a Paymaster's Wagon Train—A Woman Arrested for Wearing Man's Attire—Boom in Northern Lumber.

Brisk Trade in Northern Lumber.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—[Special.]—A prominent lumber dealer commenting on the rapid increase of trade in Oregon and Washington territory lumber, said to an OREGONIAN correspondent this afternoon: "You can have no idea of the development of our business during the past two years. Where we formerly confined our attention to the wants of this coast we now ship to foreign countries, and have opened the field for an important business in the eastern markets. It was only the other day that quite an extensive shipment of shingles was made to New York, and this will, in all probability, be followed by others. Mexico is another objective point which has lately entered the list of lumber importers, while the China trade is daily growing more lucrative. On completion of the Northern Pacific our firm proposes to ship various kinds of lumber to eastern markets, and expect to do a considerable business in supplying good car building material by an excellent substitute for ordinary hard woods, and which can be highly polished."

"Are there any important contracts?"

"Well, that is hardly a fair question, but business is booming, and we're jubilant."

An Opium Smuggling Scheme.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—The United States grand jury reported to-day. Amongst the indictments were two against James Harkins, one for defrauding the government and the other for bribing a government official. Also one against J. F. O'Bierne for accepting a bribe. Harkins is a man of considerable wealth, and owns a valuable ranch in Santa Cruz and another in Monterey. For several years he has been the head and front of an opium smuggling system at this port by which, it is believed, some $2,000,000 worth of opium has been brought into the country without paying duty. He has been prominent in the matter of furnishing bail for parties heretofore arrested for smuggling. A number of years ago he was steerage steward on a China steamer, where he is understood to have learned the smuggling trade. O'Bierne is United States court commissioner, which position he has held for a number of years past. Evidence brought to the attention of the grand jury shows that for a long time he has been in collusion with smugglers and has accepted much money from Harkins. It is understood that other government officials are implicated and that further developments of a startling nature may be expected.

A Woman Arrested for Wearing Man's Attire.

A short time to-day before the sailing of the Queen of the Pacific for Portland, Captain Alexander remarked something peculiar about a gentleman and lady who had taken passage on the steamer, and who were in their state room. There was nothing peculiar about the man, but the woman was dressed in male attire. Thinking there was something wrong he had them arrested and driven to the chief of police. The gentleman explained that they were from Ohio and that his wife, who was in delicate health, dressed in that fashion by order of her physician. They were immediately released and driven back to the steamer only to find it gone with all their effects on board. They hope to leave on the next steamer.

Cutting Rates.

Third class tickets to eastern cities are now sold at a discount and drawback of over one-fourth in many instances being allowed. As much as $20 has been recently deducted from the rate, owing to competition between eastern lines having agencies here. These drawbacks are paid by the eastern lines, and amount nearly to the entire proportion of through fare which they receive.

A Confessed Murderer.

John Hennesey who deliberately murdered Mrs. Mattie Fellows on the 6th inst., and acknowledged his guilt, waived examination after the testimony of two witnesses had been heard, and was held to answer by the court without bail.

Railroad Tax Cases.

In the United States court to-day three railroad tax cases were selected for trial—one brought by Santa Clara county against the Southern Pacific railroad, one by Sacramento county against the Central Pacific, and one by Colusa county against the North Pacific road.

Failed to Appear.

John F. Broadhead was called for trial to-day, on the charge of forging a check on the assistant treasurer of the United States for $4600, and not appearing in court his bonds of $10,000 were declared forfeited. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

The Mexico.

[Special.]—The steamship Mexico sails to-morrow for Victoria and Puget sound with a full freight list. Hereafter steamers for the above ports will sail at 10 o'clock in the morning instead of in the afternoon.

Invitations Issued.

Invitations to the coming conclave have been sent to a number of prominent knights in foreign countries, including the prince of Wales, king of Sweden and king of the Hawaiian Islands.

Pleads not Guilty.

James Dods, defaulting treasurer of Oakland, has pleaded not guilty to two charges of embezzlement, notwithstanding his previous ample confession of crime made to the city council.

Enforcement of Quarantine.

A strict enforcement of quarantine regulations has been ordered at this port on all vessels having cleared or touched at ports infected with cholera, smallpox and yellow fever.

Homicide Near Watsonville.

WATSONVILLE, Cal., July 17.—A shooting scrape between Joe Joris, a restaurant keeper, and Al. Clement, time keeper for the paper mill at Corralitos, occurred Monday night. The latter was intoxicated, and threatened to shoot, and Joris got a pistol and shot Clement in the back, the ball piercing the right kidney, and lodging near the navel. Clement died at 6 o'clock Tuesday night. Joris is under arrest.

MULDOON AND BIBBY.

The "Solid Man" Finds His Match at Last—Two Draw Matches.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—[Special.]—The wrestling match this evening between Muldoon and Bibby drew the largest crowd that ever presented itself before the Metropolitan Temple. Hundreds were turned away. The match was the most scientific ever held in this city, and at times the excitement rose to a fever heat. The conditions were that the men wrestle one hour at Græco-Roman, and one hour at catch-as-catch-can. The men commenced work briskly, Bibby forcing from the start, playing for a body hold, which he succeeded in getting. Muldoon dropping on his hands and knees, Bibby next took a neck hold, although twisting the solid man until his body was at right angles with his neck. Muldoon broke away, and after trying to secure a hold on the Englishman's neck, he again went down on his knees, Bibby on top. This performance was repeated five times, until finally both secured neck holds, turning and twisting in the air, and not breaking their hold until they bent head to head and foot to foot with one shoulder on the floor. The audience cheered itself hoarse. It was evident that Muldoon did not understand the strength of his man, as he remained on the defensive throughout, while Bibby did all the work. Four additional times did Muldoon drop on his knees, Bibby each time getting a terrible hold on his neck, but being severely handicapped by Muldoon's enormous frame and strength.

The Græco-Roman match was declared a draw, and after an intermission of fifteen minutes the men came together, catch-as-catch-can, Bibby again forcing the work, while Muldoon appeared to be afraid of him. This was shown when the former was caught by the foot, and in attempting to extricate himself he slipped, giving Muldoon a valuable opportunity for which the audience hissed him severely. Several times the men locked arms and legs, but to no purpose, as the match resulted in a draw. Another match was made for two hours, each style for a purse of $1,000.

STATE DISPATCHES.

Accident to the O. & C. Paymaster's Wagon Train.

WOLF CREEK, July 17.—[Special.]—This afternoon as the China paymaster of the O. & C. railroad, and his armed escort of seven white men, were coming over the Cow creek mountain, one of the teams ran away, and running into the other wagons ahead, caused a general smashup, two wagons, with the horses and men, going off the road over the mountain-side, a distance of seventy-five or eighty feet. Two white men, named Ray and Gramp, sustained severe injuries. The former, it is feared, will die, as his whole face is crushed in. The other is injured internally. One Chinaman is reported as being very badly hurt, but your correspondent could not learn any particulars. The wounded men were sent to Glendale where medical assistance was obtained. Your correspondent was one of the party going over the mountain-side but was fortunate enough not to sustain any injury.

Homicide in Grant County.

HEPPNER, July 16, via PENDLETON, July 17.—[Special.]—News reached here that on Sunday, July 8, W. F. McDuffy shot and killed Ben Acock, near the Warm Springs, on the middle fork of John Day river, about fifty miles southeast of Heppner. McDuffy is an old settler and had a ranch there. Acock was formerly night-watchman in Heppner. For the past two years he has been running a dairy for Adam Hart, on the middle fork of the John Day. Jealousy and an alleged intimacy with McDuffy's wife are said to be the cause of the shooting. McDuffy went to Canyon City and surrendered to the sheriff.

Weinhard's Brewery Burned at Dayton.

DAYTON, July 17.—[Special.]—At 1:30 this afternoon fire was discovered burning through the roof of the upper story of Weinhard's brewery on the river bank [illegible] of Watt's mill. Very little was saved, for it burned like tinder. The loss is about $[illegible]; insured in the South British and National for $4000. Hugo Ankeny, a clerk, overheated himself while running with the engine, but the doctors think not seriously. The foreman was run over by a truck, but not seriously injured.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

The Hill Investigation.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The attention of J. Hill, supervising architect, yesterday was called to the published statement that he contemplated resigning when the present investigation is closed. He said the statement was premature. The investigation gave him enough to do at present and he could not say what he would do after it was over.

In the examination to-day five contracts for furnishing iron shutters for a public building, made with the United States Fire Proof Shutter Company were put in evidence.

Coleman called attention to the fact that they were signed by Damon, as superintendent of the company, and asked if defense would concede that they were all of the contracts made for supplying fire proof shutters since August, 1876. Hill acknowledged that such was the fact.

Next in evidence were contracts made with George L. Damon, for supplying vaults for public buildings. Coleman asked if defense would concede that Damon was only a contractor for safe and vaults since 1876. Hill could not say, but thought it probable.

Next in order were a number of contracts for safes and vaults, which Coleman said had been made with Damon, upon verbal authority and without advertisement. He also read Damon's card, where in he described himself as a builder of safes for the treasury department. "Damon has had that upon his letterheads for fifteen years," said Totten.

"Then it is time he gave some one else a chance," replied Coleman.

Coleman said he could go into the subject of elevators, of plumbing, or of any branch, and show that there was always one man (as in the case of Barrett, Robbins & Co.) with whom the supervising architect did business, in such a manner that division was possible, without any one else knowing it.

The commission decided to allow Coleman to prepare an abstract of vouchers, to be used in evidence.

Chairman New read a letter from W. H. Bliss stating he could testify to nothing whatever of any moment or interest, if called before the commission. This is sent, notwithstanding the newspapers have published articles alleging that he (Bliss) could and would, testify to important matters. Bliss concludes his letter by asserting that a trip to Washington from New England would be useless and expensive.

Coleman read an editorial article from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, stating that a trustworthy and guiltless reporter, who interviewed Bliss, is willing to make affidavit to its accuracy. Coleman added that the statement was entitled to as much credence as Bliss' letter. Adjourned.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—A prominent local officer in speaking to-night of the uniform regulation issued a few days ago, said: "Down with the whole thing, especially the stiff cocked hat and helmet. About 90 per cent. of the officers of the navy feel that Captain and lieutenant commander have been chief, instrumental in forcing this regulation on the navy, which for the present is suspended, and I hope will so remain. Next winter congress should make the present uniform a permanent one and no permit any change, except by act of congress, or a petition of at least 50 per cent. of the officers in the service."

ACCIDENTS.

TERRIFIC BOILER EXPLOSION.

READING, Pa., July 17.—Eight boilers for anthracite furnaces, owned by the Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company and operated by Wm. Kaufman, exploded early this morning, reducing the furnace to a mass of ruins. Preparations had been made for casting, and the employes were outside of the building, taking a rest before preparing the furnace, when the explosion occurred. Large pieces of the boilers were hurled a great distance and the debris of stone and shattered timber was thrown about in great confusion. The engine and boiler house was entirely demolished. Frank Waltman, aged 21, of Topton, was instantly killed. So. Waltman, his father, was injured internally and will die. Morris Good was severely scalded by escaping steam. Engineer Marsteller also was badly injured and a number of other employes were slightly hurt. The force of the explosion shook the earth and aroused people for miles around. The damage to the furnace will amount to many thousands.

POWDER EXPLOSION.

CLEVELAND, July 17.—A large tank at the California powder mill, three miles south of the city limits, exploded to-day with terrific force; cause unknown. One man's hands were badly burned by a flying spark. Nobody else was injured, as no one happened to be near at the time. Windows were shattered for miles around.

KILLED IN A TRAIN ACCIDENT.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., July 17.—A freight train on the Reading railroad about a mile from here was badly wrecked to-day, twelve cars being thrown from the track by striking a cow. Wm. Thomas of this place was killed and James Huffman, brakeman, seriously injured.

REV. DR. TYNG.

"Over there, Just Across the River, in the Beautiful Clouds, they are Calling me."

NEW YORK, July 17.—A reporter called on Rev. Dr. Stephen H. Tyng at his home at Irvington on the Hudson. He found him seated on a rustic bench under a tree on a grassy lawn. At his feet, kneeling on the grass, was his grand-daughter, holding one of his hands in hers, while she prattled with him in her childish way. Although easily impressed with the bent form and wasted face of the aged divine, much more sad was the impression of the visitor on the reply of Dr. Tyng, indicating as did his mental state. Raising his trembling, emaciated arm, he pointed toward the western heavens and in an unsteady and piping voice, explained: "Over there, just across the river, in the beautiful clouds, they are calling me, but I can't come just yet. I must wait until my work is finished here. I will then go to render my account."

DR. TYNG'S HALLUCINATION.

Unrestrained, he talked in this vein for a while, but he soon became oblivious of the presence of his visitor. When he had continued his rambling remarks for some time his little attendant gently led him, as a little child just taking its first steps, into the house. Dr. Tyng's hallucination is that he is still rector of St. George's church, and still in possession of his former physical power and undimmed mental faculties; that he is still preaching his regular Sunday sermon in that church, and during the week is engaged in the good work of visiting, praying with, and supplying the wants of the poor and needy among his parishioners. The golden wedding of Dr. Tyng will be celebrated to-morrow.

THE PRIZE RING.

SULLIVAN MUST HAVE PAY.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—John T. Sullivan's principal supporter informed a Herald reporter last night that Slade and Mace could be accommodated only by agreeing to give Sullivan 35 per cent. of the receipts of a boxing match. Sullivan had plenty of remunerative engagements and had just completed arrangements for a grand entertainment at Boston, at which he would probably meet Paddy Ryan. The latter had offered Sullivan terms of 35 per cent. and if there is no possibility of making a match with Sullivan on other terms, Mace will have to agree to them, if Slade is to meet the champion.

TELEGRAPHERS' TROUBLES.

The Matter in the Hands of the Company, Awaiting Decision.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS ON THE STRIKE.

The Telephone Men and Their Grievances—Wall Street Men Urging the Operators to Strike—The Situation at Various Points

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—Superintendent Humstone was asked: "What is your personal opinion of the telegraphers' letter?"

"The Telegraphers' Brotherhood have asked altogether too much," was the reply. "The company cannot afford to increase the pay and shorten the hours of labor. I would suggest that the Telegraphers' Brotherhood furnish us a list of their members, so that we may know officially just who the men are who make the requests for more pay and less work. The Western Union managers are not supposed to recognize the brotherhood. We have no contract with such an organization. This, however, is a technical view of the matter. I have no doubt that a definite reply will be made to the demands of the committee, by whom the brotherhood is represented."

John J. Kiernan, speaking of the demands made by the telegraphers, said that he understood the question of increasing the operators' pay and decreasing the hours of labor will be considered at a meeting of the directors of the Western Union Telegraph Company to-morrow. "Concessions will be made on both sides. I have been informed by a director of the Western Union Company that the officers of that corporation are anxious to do everything that will benefit their employes and the commercial and personal interests of the company generally. I am also told that the operators will cease work on Wednesday noon, unless their demands are complied with."

WHAT THE COMPANY SAYS.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—Post: Mr. Somerville, representing General Eckert, said to-day that "the company have not yet received from the committee the names of those operators in the employ of the company whom they claim to represent. If this information is not received by noon to-morrow it is probable that the executive committee will send a reply to the committee, declining to treat with them. I have talked with a number of operators, including many members of the brotherhood, and every one with whom I have talked expressed the opinion that the demands made were unjust and unreasonable. Fully one-third of the operators employed by this company will refuse to join in the strike, should one be declared, and in twenty-four hours afterward we would have one-half of our regular number of operators at work. The alleged dispatches from ex-Governor Cornell and F. L. Ames, advising that concessions be granted to the operators, are forgeries."

WALL STREET MEN AT THE BOTTOM OF THE MATTER.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—Commercial: It has been an open secret on Wall street for several days past that extensive publications as to the possibility of a strike by the telegraph operators, was the work of certain Wall street operators, who have attempted by this means to cause a break in Western Union stock. It is also known that these same parties have been stirring up the operators through several channels, and have even gone so far as to offer pecuniary assistance if they indulged in a strike. It is now known beyond doubt that the brotherhood had, before deciding upon their course of action, been assured of the sympathy and forthcoming aid of several Wall street operators, who sought this means to depress Western Union stock and make a turn.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

NEW YORK, July 17.—[Special.]—The Herald says of the telegraphers' demands: "On the whole, it may be doubted whether they have presented a strong case. That evils exist cannot be questioned, but they will not be remedied by the course taken."

Times: "A strike will be pretty serious business. It ought to be possible to reach an adjustment which shall do justice to all concerned."

Sun: "It will not be denied that some of their demands are just."

Other papers are non-committal.

WHAT THE HERALD SAYS.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The Herald editorially says of the threatened strike of the brotherhood of telegraphers: "Though their petition is couched in respectful terms it leaves the impression of asking too much. It requests that a day's work be made eight hours instead of nine, and night work seven instead of eight hours, a reduction of one-ninth in one case, and one-eighth in the other. At the same time it wants all wages increased 15 per cent, irrespective of age or skill or the position of the operator, besides extra compensation for Sunday work. The real effect of these demands will be best illustrated by example: Day operators receive say $75 per month, or counting nine hours to the day and six days to the week, about 33 cents per hour. Under the proposed rate monthly wages will be $86 25 for day work of eight hours during all days of the week, or about 48 cents per hour, an actual increase of more than 27 per cent. In regard to Wheatstone operators, an increase of 60 per cent is demanded for them.

"COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER."

NEW YORK, July 17.—The newspapers are giving considerable space to the threatened telegraph trouble, both in the nature of interviews and in editorial comment. From the Commercial Advertiser: The last development in the telegraph trouble is that speculators on Wall street are offering money to operators to strike. This is the last phase of the war on the telegraph companies, but the publication of the names of the unscrupulous people who are urging on a struggle that would produce incalculable loss to the country may not be so pleasant to them as beating Western Union stock down. These people tread on dangerous ground when they make this attempt.

WILL MEET TO-DAY.

The executive committee of the Western Union Telegraph Company will meet to-morrow, and the petition of the operators will then be brought to their consideration. One officer of the company said to-day that it was impossible to say what action would be taken. The general opinion was that the demand was excessive and unreasonable. No action will be taken by the Mutual American Rapid or the Baltimore and Ohio companies.

THE SITUATION AT CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, July 17.—The Evening Journal gives the following, as the present status of the telegraph and telephone complication: Up to noon to-day there were no new developments in the existing troubles between the telegraph companies and their employes. The men's proposition is now under advisement by the companies' officials, who will probably report to-morrow, either accepting or declining the proposed terms. In conversation with a number of operators this morning a Journal reporter found that the chances of a strike were extremely uncertain. The men all appear to feel sanguine that the companies will concede unconditionally to their demands, which they think are no more than reasonable, and should have been granted by the companies without asking. There is no truth in the report that the telephone company was about to discharge the ringleaders who are inciting linemen and inspectors to strike. Had the telephone company done this the men say they would all have quit at once. It is stated on good authority that the trouble between the telephone company and their help will be amicably settled by to-morrow.

AT PITTSBURG.

PITTSBURG, July 17.—[Special.]—The telegraph operators of this city are highly elated over the manner in which their demands have been received by the Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph company. A prominent member of the brotherhood said this evening: "We expect the Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph company to accede to our demands at once, because that company is the only real competitor of the Western Union, and is anxious to secure a large share of the business of the country. We also anticipated no trouble from the Western Union, but do not expect that General Eckert will give in until the last minute, which will be Wednesday noon. If he should not come to terms by that time, every man in the Western Union office will leave his desk in this city. Every operator is a member of the brotherhood, and not a man will work after Wednesday noon if our terms are not met. There can be no compromise."

AT BOSTON.

BOSTON, July 17.—[Special.]—The brotherhood here contains 250 members, and it is claimed all will leave their "keys" Wednesday noon, if a strike is ordered. A member of the executive committee of the brotherhood went to New York to-night, on a telegraphic summons from General Manager Eckert, presumably to consult over the situation. It is rumored here that the Great Northwestern, Canadian and American railroad, and the Baltimore and Ohio companies have yielded.

THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO.

CHICAGO, July 16.—[Special.]—Reports here tonight state that a message was received from Baltimore to the effect that President Garrett, of the Baltimore and Ohio telegraph company sent word to the committee of the Brotherhood Telegraphers to come and see him. They called, were received and their demands acceded to. The report, as yet, lacks confirmation, though it is generally credited among the fraternity.

DECIDED TO STRIKE.

CHICAGO, July 17.—The Telephone Company officials to-day sent for the foreman of their gang of repairers and linemen and asked what the men wanted. The foreman, in reply, referred them to the executive committee of the Telegraphers' Brotherhood. The officials refused to recognize that committee, and it is stated that, at a subsequent meeting, it was decided to strike at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning.

AT SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—Mr. Jaynes, superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Company, this morning stated to a Post reporter that he has not received any news of further developments than those already published. He thought the question of wages would be amicably adjusted.

PRONOUNCED FORGERIES.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The Western Union officials state that the telegrams published this morning in the papers, purporting to come from two directors of the Western Union, and advising compromise, were forgeries. No such dispatches have been received.

A STRIKE BELIEVED INEVITABLE.

CHICAGO, July 17.—[Special.]—The general impression here to-night is that the telegraph strike will begin to-morrow at noon, New York time, or a quarter to 9 San Francisco time, all operators quitting their keys simultaneously at a preconcerted signal, from one end of the country to the other. This opinion is based on the fact that the company shows no signs of yielding, but, on the contrary appears to be preparing the public mind to expect a strike, while at the same time the operators speak in the most determined manner to the effect that nothing except a full concession to their demands will avert the strike. This afternoon President Thomas T. Eckert, of the Western Union, sent a long dispatch to Colonel R. C. Clowry, general superintendent, which sends a pretty plain indication that the company does not intend to accede to the operators' demands.

CROOK CAPTURED.

The General Admits that His Scouts Proved Treacherous.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—[Special.]—A gentleman who was present at Crook's conference with the secretary of war and the secretary of the interior, says that Commissioner Price, head of the Indian bureau, asked Crook whether it was not true, as reported, that he had been practically captured by the Apaches, and had only succeeded in getting back by bringing them with him, promising to put them back on San Carlos reservation. Crook admitted that to be the fact, and explained that trusting to the faithfulness of his Apache scouts, he did not take a large enough contingent of white soldiers for his troops, and the Apaches knowing this, he was in their power from the time he crossed the border. He realized that only a most politic course would prevent him and his white soldiers from being massacred and that he must employ cunning measures in order to get back with a semblance of honor, so he marched right on, surrounded by foes. The scouts insisted on dividing all duties of the march with the white soldiers, and Crook had to let them do as they desired.

CROOK USES HIS PERSONAL INFLUENCE.

Arriving at the refuge of the Apaches' camp, he used his personal influence with the scouts, asking them to induce the fugitives to return to the United States. He told them that he was a man of peace and honesty, and that he would take them to peace and [illegible]. He was willing to guarantee the fugitives a peaceful life on their old reservation if they would return peacefully. This suited the fugitives. They knew Crook to be honest and were willing to take his word. The braves would not return with them, but they sent back some of the squaws and children, rather as hostages, meanwhile the braves awaiting the ratification of Crook's agreement. When the refusal of Teller to permit the hostiles to come back to the reservation was telegraphed west some of the scouts got wind of it and sent some of the squaws with the news to the hostiles, and the fugitive braves may now be on the warpath again.

LINCOLN KNOWS NOTHING OF THE STORY.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Secretary Lincoln said today that the story published to the effect that General Crook, instead of capturing the Apaches, had been their captive, and was only released on condition that he would receive their return unpunished to the reservation, was news to him; that he had never heard such a thing intimated before, and as far as he knew General Crook had been very successful in his campaign against the Indians. During the secretary's recent absence he had not devoted much time to keeping himself posted, and was comparatively ignorant of what had been transpiring.

Several army officers who were questioned on this subject were of the opinion that the course pursued by General Crook toward the hostile Indians would only result in their feeling themselves independent and free to come and go as they saw fit. Attention was called to the fact that the remaining bucks had not given themselves up, and the opinion prevailed that General Crook would have to go after them again.

THE STATEMENT PRONOUNCED FALSE.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—[Special.]—Captain J. G. Bourke, who was adjutant-general of Crook's command, was seen in his mother's residence in this city regarding the statement that the Apaches had captured Crook, made by ex-state Senator Gibbs of Texas. Bourke denounces them as lies. Crook achieved the main object of this expedition. In the terrible country into which Crook made his way there might be a hundred Indians, and if few killed or captured nine-tenths the others could carry on a defensive warfare for an indefinite time, killing off both the troops and animals of the attacking force out of all proportion to the defenders. [illegible] what was right. In conclusion, Bourke said: "He was not defeated. I say this positively, without regard to the assertions of self-styled state senators or military dudes in Washington."

BRUTAL ASSAULT UPON A YOUNG LADY.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—This morning a man gained admission to the house of a family named Spear, near the capitol, on the declaration that he was a water inspector, and brutally assaulted a young lady, the only person in the house. He choked her into insensibility, and accomplished his purpose. The victim was seriously injured, and may die. The assailant has not been arrested. Under a law passed by the last congress, officials called water inspectors were authorized to enter the houses of citizens for the purpose of inspecting water fixtures, to ascertain if the water wasted. There was some outcry at the time about the license to invade dwellings, which the law gave, but it did not prevent its enactment. In the case of the assault to-day the man took advantage of this license, and entering the house and finding the young lady alone, he assaulted her as stated.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 18, 1883.

THE LIQUOR CONTEST IN OHIO.

A recent dispatch from Cleveland said: "Yesterday the time expired in which the saloon-keepers were to pay their assessments under the Scott law. One thousand two hundred and ninety-eight dealers have paid the tax. The contributions amounted to $314,406 49. The county commissioners have made no levy for poor purposes, while city taxation has been reduced several mills."

Other dispatches say that the Scott law is becoming very popular throughout Ohio. There is no wonder, when it works results of this kind in a state where the liquor traffic has for more than thirty years been wholly free. The Ohio tax is not high enough; it is but $200 a year for selling spirituous liquors and half that sum for selling malt liquors. But it will do very well as a beginning. The law was enacted by a republican legislature, it is attacked as a republican measure, and that party resolutely defends it, making the law one of the chief issues of the contest. Already it has thrown the democratic party of Ohio upon the defensive in a campaign which that party supposed and proclaimed was to be a "walk over" for itself.

The prohibitionists of Ohio seem to have reconsidered their early purpose to make a strong fight on an independent basis, and now appear disposed to join the republicans in sustaining the Scott law, with a view to holding firmly to what has been gained and making it secure, before attempting another advance. The position of the democratic party, by its opposition to this righteous and valid tax law, has been greatly weakened. Judge Hoadly, the democratic candidate for governor, has got himself into a serious dilemma by his speeches, from which he is trying to escape by various expedients which only draw him deeper into the bog of recklessness and insincerity. Meantime those who support the taxation of the liquor traffic are preparing for a most energetic and thorough campaign. Supported by such arguments as that supplied in the report of the workings of the Scott law in Cleveland—and similar reports come from all the cities and large towns of the state—their position is becoming stronger every day; and it is believed that even in the large cities there will be no majority against the party which upholds the law, while in the rural districts it will sweep all before it. The democratic party will find that it has got on the wrong side of this question also, as it has been on the wrong side of nearly every other question of importance during the last twenty-five years. The liquor element is very strong, but it is nowhere so strong as it pretends to be. The recent election in this city proved in the most conclusive manner that on a direct issue, with an honest vote secured through registry, Portland would give a clear majority in support of a $500 license fee as against the $200 fee formerly required. In no city in the United States is the low element in the liquor traffic proportionately stronger than in Portland. The result of our election, then, was a "pointer" of no small value. It was a sign, added to many more, that they who oppose taxation and restriction of the liquor traffic would do well to "stand from under." The Ohio election may give a report on the subject whose detonations will resound all over the union.

HAVOC EXTENDING.

The destruction of forests by fire in this state and Washington territory continues. Disaster is widespread. In the lower Umpqua and Siuslaw regions thousands of acres of splendid timber have been burned out; in Tillamook the damage has been great, and in the Nehalem valley vast quantities of cedar have gone up in smoke. The most extensive fires in Washington territory have been in the vicinity of Port Gamble. In twenty localities in western Washington fires have raged a few days and then died out, each doing a considerable share of damage. The estimate of a million dollars loss to the country, made last week needs to be doubled to keep pace with the spreading havoc. As this loss is chiefly upon government lands, it does not affect the country as a general calamity. The same fact is an explanation of the fortunate circumstance that the raging fires have not destroyed human life or improved property to any great extent. The flames have fed almost entirely upon uninhabited tracts, and where they have approached settlements have been driven back. That they have been driven back in every instance where they have threatened serious danger to villages or even isolated settlements, is sufficient proof that they could at all times be controlled by intelligent and determined effort. A plan for preventing a spread of fires is suggested by a farmer of Yamhill county, who says that he has often put it to the practical test and always found it to work well. In firing "slashes," he says, their outer limits should be cleared of brush and the whole surrounded by a row of furrows—many or few, in consideration of the intensity of the fire and the condition of the exposed forests. Fire is not so likely to spread by catching in the branches of standing trees, as to find its way along the ground through inflammable dry grass and forest litter. A freshly turned furrow, or two or three of them, will stop the spread of fire along the ground and often limit its ravages when all other means are useless. But it is idle to expect that much good will result from merely pointing out the way of caution. Before forest fires can be checked to any great extent, there must be strict laws fixing their responsibility and severely punishing offenders.

A friend writes from Olympia: "Prohibitionists do not accept your high license arguments, because they say high license only tends to make the liquor traffic more respectable." We cannot think this a sound argument, especially at the present stage of the discussion, when the question is not whether we shall allow the traffic to exist at all, but whether, since it does exist, we can muster force enough to restrain some of the grosser of its abuses. Let us see first whether we can do this, and then from the vantage ground thus occupied we may be able to create a sentiment for attack upon further abuses. If meantime by this course the traffic shall be made "more respectable," something surely will have been gained. We shall be rid of some of its most offensive features; of its insufferable pretensions in politics; of its increasing tendency to multiply drinking holes which invite the consumption of vile liquors and take up a large share of the weekly wages of large classes. A further argument for high license is that it will tend to make liquors scarce and high, and so place a check upon a great evil which cannot at once be overthrown. It will require more capital to go into the "business," a fact which will tend very strongly towards prevention of the spread of it. Admit with the prohibitionists that a traffic so subject to abuse ought not to exist at all; yet since it does exist and is so strongly intrenched, should we not now go as far in our efforts to check its abuses as public opinion will justify, and make other advances when we can? Prohibition is not before our people as a question upon which they can act at this time, but high license is. Every incorporated town may act upon it. Here is a practical matter that need not be postponed to the ideal good.

During the period of the fire last evening a storm of hot cinders rained upon that part of the city to the leeward of the burning blocks. Several roofs caught from the burning ball, and only the most industrious efforts with wet blankets and pails of water prevented spread of the fire over a wide district. It would be well if special provision were made for emergencies during the dry season.

In Portland, Maine, on the fourth of July the one hundred and seventh anniversary of national independence and that of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the settlement of the city were blended together.

SUN STORMS AND EARTH STORMS.

Sun spots have been unusually prevalent and large during the past six months. These spots are supposed to indicate prodigious activity upon the face of the sun. Enormous masses of incandescent matter are shot out two hundred thousand miles or more from his surface, accompanied by whirling motion and cyclonic action. These tremendous sun storms appear to move in groups across the face of the great luminary, covering at any given place upon his surface an area compared with which the whole dimensions of our planet would be but an insignificant point. Though the action of the sun upon terrestrial weather is as yet but imperfectly understood, there is a belief among scientific men that the anomalous weather which has been experienced during several months past in many parts of our globe, including electrical storms and tornadoes, is in some way related to these frightful storms on the sun. It is certain that the coincidences have frequently been observed; but man is not yet able to take in enough of the phenomena to perceive the connection between sun storms and earth storms, still less to formulate the law upon which the latter may be predicted as the result of the former.

But if tornadoes and electrical storms which are of so frequent occurrence on the other side of the continent, are the result of these mighty, though occult, causes, why should we not have like disturbances on this side? Perhaps the answer may be found in the steadiness of terrestrial forces on this side of the continent, which overcome even the powerful influences exerted by the sun storms in other localities, where these terrestrial forces are not so steady. We get the southwest wind for half the year almost without interruption, and the northwest wind the other half of the year, with about equal steadiness. Atmospheric conditions with us therefore remain equable. Observations made by the signal service seem to point to the fact that the development of tornadoes requires the meeting of two currents, one of which must be very warm and moist, and the other very cold and dry. Sergeant Finley, of the signal service corps, in a recent paper says: "Of 476 cases in which the atmospheric conditions preceding tornadoes were observed, 410 were reported as violent thunder storms, and 148 as particularly sultry and oppressive. It is during the recovery of the atmospheric equilibrium in this (the south-western) part of the general disturbance," the writer of this paper states, "that opportunity occurs for the formation of high thermal contrasts, by the rapid descent of an area of barometric maxima from the northwest." As throwing some further possible light upon this very obscure subject, in connection with the terrible cyclone that ravaged Mississippi in April last, the Weather Review records the coexistence on that day of "the most extended area of high pressure" observed during that month, and then approaching Lake Ontario, with "the most marked barometric depression of the month," then in the lower Mississippi valley. The meeting of these areas of strongly contrasted temperature and barometric pressure may possibly be and probably should be taken as the proximate cause of these great storms. The ultimate cause or causes is a much deeper question.

PROTECTION AGAINST FIRE AGAIN.

Experience everywhere has proved that money spent for protection against fire, is money well spent. The cost of protection is so light compared with the possibility of loss, and the damage which it often actually prevents, that it has come to be a business habit to surround property with every possible safeguard. Portland has long been distinguished by the excellent equipment and the efficiency of its fire brigade. Our city government has dealt with almost liberality with the firemen always. The needs of the old volunteer department were ever promptly and liberally supplied, and the new paid department is furnished with the best possible appliances. In return, the city has been well protected, when it is considered that the exposure here is very much greater than in cities where wood is less generally used in building. But an additional safeguard against fire is offered by the hydraulic elevator company. It is proposed by this company to set up fire plugs, each with a capacity more than double that of the most powerful steamer, throughout the business section of the city, if property will pay a special tax of $1 per month for every twenty-five feet front. The efficiency of the hydraulic plug system is unquestioned. It has been tried in other cities, always with marked success, and the few plugs already set up in Portland sufficiently illustrate its advantages. By all means, it should be introduced. But the question is, who shall pay for it? Individual property holders who have been appealed to, say that they are sufficiently taxed to support the regular fire department, and that the occupiers of business buildings, most of whom carry costly stocks, ought to bear the special expense. Occupiers, on the other hand, see clearly that the expense should be borne by owners. There are those of both classes who think that the system should be maintained by the city; but to this, objection is made by property owners whose holdings are not in the district which it is proposed to specially protect. They see no reason why they should be taxed to afford unusual and costly protection to a particular section which is well able to look out for its own interests. Some way out of this complication ought to be found without declining the proposition of the elevator company. The opportunity offered is too valuable to be rejected. If it is possible that too much is asked, but a proper adjustment of this, if it is a fact that too much is asked, could doubtless be easily arranged. Last night's fire illustrated the need of a water supply which the engines are unable to afford. If two good streams, well directed, had been available for the protection of the Nicolai house, that building could easily have been saved. The firemen did all that was possible, and they did well, but it was a physical impossibility for them to cover all points where water could have been thrown with profit. An important point of advantage afforded by the hydraulic plug system is its constant readiness. Fire plugs are always in their places, and always ready for operation. Where the system is used, a special hose service is devoted to it, and in four cases out of five "first water" is from the plugs.

Many heavy taxpayers of East Portland have asked the council of that city to buy a steam fire engine. By all means an engine should be secured. It is a common fault with the young cities of this country to put off getting safeguards against fire till the fire has come. Dayton and Colfax in eastern Washington, and numerous other places in the territory and in this state have suffered severely from postponement. East Portland is so near to the fire engines of Portland that she will never have to maintain a great and costly department; but it takes time to get the machines across the river, and a little time early in the career of a fire oftentimes decides the fate of cities. Besides, East Portland does not want to be wholly dependent upon the help of her big sister in case of distress.

THE ARTHUR BOOM.

His Administration Endorsed by the Republicans Generally.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—[Special.]—It will be remembered that it was to General Harry White, president of the Pennsylvania republican state committee in 1877, that President Grant addressed his Cleveland letter on the "third term," which was drawn out by a resolution of the convention to the effect that under the sanction of the most favorable example presidential service was limited to two terms. General White was chairman of the committee on resolutions at the present republican state convention, held at Harrisburg, and reported a resolution endorsing the administration of President Arthur. In conversation to-day he said it was surprising to what extent President Arthur was growing in popular estimation in Pennsylvania, and he particularly noticed the cordial approval of the commendatory resolution was received from all the delegates to the convention.

THE ARTHUR SENTIMENT UNANIMOUS.

Since adjournment of the convention he had met many prominent republicans in his travels through the state, and the sentiment was the same everywhere. He said that Arthur was growing in popularity, and his administration commended itself to the warmest approval of his fellow citizens. With continued increase of this confidence and popularity it would not be hard to predict who would be the nominee of the next national republican convention. It is already said of Arthur what was never said of his predecessors who were vice-presidents, that the wisdom of his administration promises to disarm political opposition, increase the confidence of his friends, and multiply advocates for his continuance in the presidential chair, a fact which General White cites as certain evidence of the success of the republican party in Pennsylvania at the fall election, and the election next year of a majority of the republican electors.

THE MORTGAGE TAX LAW.

BAKER CITY, July 14.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

Your articles on the mortgage tax and usury law met with universal approbation here. I am satisfied those who voted for the former now realize their mistake. I am also satisfied that petitions calling for a special session of the legislature would receive the signature of the public en masse. No more evidence is needed to demonstrate the fact that utter financial ruin awaits many who have mortgages to meet, and that real estate has markedly depreciated is a fact beyond dispute. Are there any petitions in circulation calling for an extra session of the legislature? If so can't you send me some for Union, Baker and Grant counties? If not, won't somebody having the welfare and prosperity of the state at heart have some printed? I will gladly circulate them here. M.

[We do not think any petitions have as yet been prepared for circulation. As yet we have heard of none. The name of the correspondent who writes the above will be given to the committee appointed by the board of trade of this city to consider the subject.—ED.]

A Voice from the Country.

Union Sentinel.

Citizens of Union county, the result of the "Mortgage Tax Law" has greatly but painfully making itself felt. Times are dull, money scarce and getting scarcer every day, as it is being drawn in by lenders and sent to Washington and Idaho territories and California, where there are no restrictions placed on capital, where it can go abroad, and seek employment at high wages as the employer may feel able to pay. The west goes that! Times are booming in Seattle and way! For the reason that Seattle speculators have their own and Oregon capital to "boom" with. The question is being asked, "Shall we have a special session of the legislature and repeal the law and redeem our state from utter financial ruin?" We say yes, by all means, and Union county representatives instructed to vote for its repeal, for if we wait for the next regular session before that time there will be comparatively not a dollar of loose capital in the state.

THE REASON

SELLWOOD has grown constantly in public favor is because of the actual intrinsic value of the property. It is the best site in or out of Portland for the average man who expects to earn his daily bread through his own exertion to get a home. He saves rent, and a hundred other expenses. He gets a home of his own. He gets into a healthy and sightly locality. He has just as good school privileges as could be asked for; is in fifteen minutes' ride of the center of Portland; costs only 5 cents passage on the company's boat. He can work his ten hours in Portland if he likes and reach Sellwood in the evening before his luckless chum, who pays $20 per month house rent on Twelfth street, walks out home. That's the reason Sellwood property is selling so rapidly. Lots are sold on installments of $10 per month.

CITY.

AUTHORITY OBTAINABLE.—A correspondent [illegible] has several times noticed in the local [illegible] of THE OREGONIAN an adverb inserted between the infinitive verb and its preposition "to," [illegible] to know if there is any authority for [illegible] adverb in such a position. The young [illegible] scribble for the local columns of this [illegible] evidently not considered as good authority [illegible] anxious inquirer. If any apology were [illegible] it might be sufficient to say that newspaper publishers do not expect reporters to always [illegible] correctly, but merely to so state facts that the [illegible] may be enabled to clearly understand them. [illegible] Brown, in his "Grammar of Grammars"—[illegible] the highest authority on English grammar [illegible] book is the largest—says: "For this placing [illegible] there be no definite general rule can be given. [illegible] is no other part of speech so liable to be [illegible] * * * Of the infinitive with [illegible] preposition "to," some grammarians say that [illegible] not to be separated by an adverb. It is [illegible] the adverb is in general more elegantly [illegible] before the preposition than after it, but, possibly the latter position may sometimes contribute [illegible] perspicuity, which is more essential than elegance." The same authority further states that this [illegible] of the infinitive is a license allowed to [illegible] and it might also have been remarked, vaunting [illegible], that a newspaper reporter is a good as a [illegible] times, and should be allowed [illegible] much.

[illegible] MONEY STOLEN.—Mrs. Duggett, the landlady of a lodging house in Astoria, was a passenger [illegible] steamer Mountain Queen, arriving in this city Monday [illegible] morning from that place. She had with her $740 [illegible] the proceeds of her enterprise, with which [illegible] proposed to pay off certain obligations in this [illegible]. The money for safe keeping was tied up in a [illegible] handkerchief and this wrapped in a black shawl, [illegible] which was kept upon the little black bundle [illegible], as she thought, the wealth within. But [illegible] just before the city was reached Mrs. Duggett had occasion to visit her state room, and left the bundle [illegible] on a seat in the ladies' [illegible] where it was used as a pillow [illegible] sleeping child of a fellow passenger. [illegible] to secure the bundle the discovery [illegible] that the money had been extracted. [illegible] Mr. Moran, who was informed of the [illegible] unable to fasten the guilt upon anyone, [illegible] the boat landed, the passengers went [illegible] ways unmolested. Mrs. Duggett immediately informed the police of her loss, and detectives have been detailed to work up the case. As [illegible] has been obtained to the whereabouts of [illegible]. Probably Mrs. Duggett knows now, that [illegible] that she could have bought a draft on [illegible] at L. W. Case's bank for a nominal fee, and [illegible] easier to conceal $740 in the form of a [illegible] in bulk.

[illegible] WOULD HAVE ENJOYED IT.—In these [illegible] dust and smoke it is refreshing to read of [illegible] as the following, which is copied [illegible] Dalles Sentinel of the 14th. In the sweet [illegible] when aerial navigation is an accomplished fact, it may be possible to hitch a balloon [illegible] like the one alluded to, and tow it around [illegible] the country. It will be necessary to [illegible] some scheme for letting her down easy for [illegible] to choose between being smothered [illegible] drowned: "Tuesday afternoon a black [illegible] hovered over the city for a few minutes and then turned loose for nearly [illegible] hour the greatest deluge of water [illegible] witnessed in such a short space [illegible] It literally fell in sheets, interspersed occasionally with hail. When over looking up Main [illegible] mile from town, a lake of water could be [illegible] for a time it was feared that damage to [illegible] and property had been occasioned, but inquiry showed that no particular harm had [illegible]. The cloud had burst on the ridge between [illegible] and Hulse's, which divided the [illegible] huge boulders were washed into the canyon, [illegible] that the water in the vicinity stood from [illegible] four feet deep."

[illegible] AND CHINESE.—"Call another witness [illegible] bring forth another chicken!" were the words [illegible] fell upon the ear of a reporter who walked [illegible] the circuit court room yesterday afternoon [illegible]. There was a bloody chopping block before [illegible] jury and a swarthy Chinaman stood over it [illegible] a butcher's cleaver swung over his shoulder. [illegible] to interrupt some terrible immolation the [illegible] behind District Attorney Caples' [illegible] of back and waited. Another Chinaman [illegible] a piece of yellow paper seized a [illegible] broom and dipping it in a bottle, [illegible] a lot of cabalistic characters [illegible]. At the same moment the hall was [illegible] the squawking of a half dozen chickens. [illegible] neck of an ill-fated rooster was stretched [illegible] block and the cleaver descended. Blood [illegible] feathers flew, jurymen jumped [illegible] the rooster rolled about the floor [illegible] and one somersault reach to the [illegible] of the pantaloons of those around. [illegible] was applied to the yellow paper, there was [illegible] a sickening stench and all was over. [illegible] does it all mean?" asked the horrified [illegible]. "Only a Chinaman taking an oath," was [illegible].

EXTENSIVE FIRE.

The Nicolai and Richmond Hotels and Grand Stables Burned.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS LOSS.

An Entire Block, Except the Brick Corner, Destroyed—List of Losses and Insurance—Report of Death in the Flames.

A few minutes before 7 o'clock last evening fire broke out in the building on Second street, near C, occupied by Listman & Mueller, the lower story as a furniture store, the upper as a cabinet makers' shop. The flames started in the upper story, where a quantity of seasoned lumber was stored, which caused them to spread with great rapidity and the Grand stable was soon in a blaze. For some unaccountable reason no one turned in an alarm and the first intimation the department received of the fire was at 7 o'clock, when a lad came running up to No. Two's house, shouting that the Grand stable was on fire. The company at once started for the fire and an alarm was turned in from the box at the police office, which brought out the remainder of the department in a hurry. By the time the engines reached the scene the fire had gained great headway and it was a foregone conclusion that the block, with the exception of the brick building on the north-east corner, was doomed. Several streams were concentrated on the furniture store, and the front of the stable, but they had no perceptible effect, and the fire rapidly ran down the stable which extended through the center of the block, and in a very brief space it was all in flames. Everything was as dry as powder and the heat was intense. The flames spread south and attacked the Richmond hotel and a cottage at its rear facing on Third street and extending north, enveloped the residence of Mat. Keith and climbed the side of the Nicolai house, which in a short time was in a blaze from the basement to the top of the flag staff.

The scene at this time was grandly magnificent, the center of the block a mass of seething flames which mounted high above the surrounding buildings and gave forth such an intense heat that the engines in front of the Richmond were forced to retreat and the firemen were obliged to use their best efforts to preserve the buildings on the east side of Second street which caught fire in a number of places.

An effective force of willing workers got to the fire before the engines arrived, and began to save property. Most of the vehicles in the stable were run out at the Third street entrance, and every horse was saved. The boarding horses and livery stock are kept on the second floor. J. W. Lemon, a hotel runner, and an Italian, whose name could not be learned, broke down a stall and made an incline to a pile of hay. They then cut loose about thirty horses and forced them down stairs upon the incline. Baggage in the offices of the Nicolai and the Richmond house was saved, together with safes, books and papers, but not more than half of the effects of lodgers and the furniture of the upper floors could be removed, owing to the intense heat and rapid spread of the flames.

The Nicolai brick block stood the fiery test well. On the west the fierce flames brought the iron doors and shutters to a white heat, and it was feared they would be warped from their fastenings. The building was filled with smoke, but a well directed stream upon the kitchen of the Nicolai hotel at critical moments, saved the brick from destruction. Several times the cornice on Second street, and the wooden coping at the rear caught fire, but at neither point were the flames allowed to gain headway, good streams being thrown to the roof from the street. The wooden work of the Mariners Home diagonally opposite the Nicolai and the International half a block below got to smoking and were protected with wet blankets. Fortunately there was not the least breath of wind except that created by the fire, else it would not have been possible to keep the fire within the limits of the block. As usual in the summer season, there was scarcity of water and cisterns soon pumped dry. One engine had to be moved to the river at the foot of D street. It was fortunate also that the water did not give out at critical periods.

The center of the block was soon a heap of smouldering ruins, and the flames were eating their way further and further into the Richmond and Nicolai hotels. The former a four story building, tumbled in at 7:40. The latter gradually crumbled away, and in about an hour from the time the fire started the block was swept of buildings, with the exception of the brick corner, and nearly $100,000 worth of property had gone up in flame and smoke.

THE LOSSES.

Following is a list of losses and insurance:

Nicolai & Bro., on the Nicolai house, the dwelling adjoining on the south occupied by Mat. Keith, and the building occupied by Listman & Mueller, $30,000; insurance, $4000. Damage to the brick building cannot be estimated until the walls cool, but will probably not be less than $3000. The building is insured for $15,000 in the [illegible] Insurance Company.

Therkelsen & McKay, owners of the Richmond house, $18,000 to $20,000; insured for $6000 in Boyd's agency; on dwelling west of the Richmond house, $1300, insured for $600 in Hewett's agency.

H. M. Taylor, lessee of Richmond house, on furniture about $6000; insured for $3500 in the Phoenix and Hamburg Bremen.

R. M. Wilbur, Grand stable, building and contents, $12,000; insured for $6000 in Sibson, Church & Co.'s agency.

Cornelius Ryan, lessee of the Nicolai house, about $15,000; insured for $10,000 in San Francisco through White & Riggen's agency.

Listmann & Mueller, on furniture stock and tools, about $5700; insured for $3500 in the Lancashire and the State Investment.

Mat. Keith, on household furniture, $1500; insured for $800.

On the southwest corner of Third and C streets was a dwelling owned by Therkelsen and McKay and occupied by the two families of Dan Vaughn and Michael McCoy. The former lost all their furniture, valued at $2000, with no insurance. McCoy lost $600; insured for $400. Living with Mrs. Vaughn was her daughter, Mrs. Rennicks, the mother of Clara A. Rennicks, the girl for whom two men in San Francisco committed suicide. Mrs. Rennicks came to Portland just four weeks ago, with her younger children and what household goods she possessed. These were valued at $400 and were a total loss. She had no insurance on them. The fire came so fast upon the house as to drive the occupants out before they could save anything.

LOSS OF LIFE REPORTED.

Just after the flames had enveloped the interior of the Richmond house, a man, evidently a lodger, bent on saving his effects, ran into the building from Second street and thence up-stairs. Very soon thereafter, less than a minute, spectators say, the north wall, which had been burning for some time, fell in and caught him. Several assert with positiveness that he did not escape. About this time a man stumbled down-stairs, picked himself up and walked off, but he was a drunken man who followed the first man up-stairs. Examination will be made among the debris for the remains.

HELP PROFFERED.

Hearing that the fire was beyond control, Mt. Hood Hook and Ladder Company of East Portland came across the river with their apparatus, reaching the scene just as the last building had tumbled in. Though not needed their proffers of help were none the less appreciated.

W. F. Bowers, manager of the Gutta Percha Rubber Company, in the Starr block, got out 2000 feet of new hose and had it ready to attach to the plugs of the Hydraulic Elevator Company at the Willamette iron works, in case the fire had spread beyond the block.

It being impossible to fill the cisterns from the street mains as fast as water was pumped therefrom, a line of hose was stretched to the elevator company's work and attached to a two and a half inch butt. A constant supply was kept up.

NOTES OF THE FIRE.

People in the hotels stood not upon the order of their going but went at once.

A telephone pole burned off half way up, but none of the wires fell or were broken.

The department had their entire force at work, including the two reserve engines.

Louis Green, of No. One's, ran a rusty nail through his arm into his foot. The wound may prove quite serious.

The iron doors and shutters of the brick block on the side toward the Nicolai house were the salvation of the building.

The Nicolai Bros., the International hotel and one or two other private parties, sent buckets of hot coffee to the firemen.

East Portland's hook and ladder truck, manned with a crew of willing fellows, came across the river to offer their assistance, but it was not needed.

City Attorney Rice was a conspicuous figure and a welcome one to the firemen as he marched around from one company to the other with a pitcher of water.

The alarm was turned in by Policeman Jim Barry from box 14, but the striking of the big bell did not convey any idea of the situation of the fire. It first struck fourteen, then twelve, then one, and finally refused to sound at all.

Twenty-eight saddles were taken out of the stables and piled up in the street, but when the excitement was over they could not be found. If they were not stolen the persons who have them in their possession are requested to make it known.

From the upper part of town the fire seemed to be close to the river front and the Jefferson street ferry boat Veto, which is also the city fire boat, came down with full steam up ready for service. As there was no danger of the flames reaching the wharves she went back at once.

Ex Policeman John Ring, who occupied the cottage on the northwest corner of Third and D streets, supposed his house was doomed and moved most of his goods into the street. The fire department drenched the house with water, saving it, but damaging the goods about $200.

Two cottages on the west side of Third street, owned by Van B. DeLashmutt and occupied by Hugh Brady and Mrs. H. Maher, caught fire and the roofs partly burned, damaging them about $100 each. The occupants moved out their furniture and it was damaged by breakage and water to the extent of $25 each.

The streets in the vicinity of the fire were densely crowded with spectators, the greater part of whom were kept at a respectful distance by the heat. Ropes were stretched in all practicable places to keep the crowd back from encumbering the firemen and but few attempts were made to pass them. G. W. Rodman and T. T. Robins, however, insisted on being inside the lines in spite of the warnings of the police and they were promptly arrested.

BETTER FIRE PROTECTION.

The necessity for more protection from fire was very evident last night. Our fire department is as efficient as it can be with the material and the water supply at its service, but a fire like that which occurred last evening shows how totally inadequate it would be to protect the city under certain circumstances. Had there been a strong wind blowing last evening it is more than probable that the city would have suffered a repetition of the disastrous fire of 1873. As it was the roofs of buildings a considerable distance from the fire were set on fire by the falling cinders. At Goldsmith & Co.'s and Fleckenstein & Mayer's the roofs were on fire, but were promptly extinguished. The old shanties opposite Wadhams & Elliott's also caught fire, and in the area adjoining the Oak street entrance of Mellis Bros.' establishment, a box of papers was set on fire by falling cinders. Suppose a fire not extinguishable with buckets had broken out in a frame range in town while the Nicolai block was burning! Answer to the inquiry suggests itself.

For some past the Hydraulic Elevator Company has offered to property located in the business section of the city, protection equal to that afforded by the department, namely fire plugs at every corner on that street supplied by powerful pumps with the inexhaustible water supply of the Willamette river to draw from. Their proposed charge is reasonable. It has not been generally accepted because owners of buildings insist that occupants should pay, while tenants claim that the slight tax should come from the real estate. All agree that the additional protection is absolutely necessary. Why, then, not have it? Let owner and occupant share the expense in proportion to value protected. The board of fire commissioners offer in case the plugs were put in, to establish a hose company under direction of the chief fire engineer, in addition to the present department. It will be the part of prudence to secure the great protection offered.

BRIEF MENTION.

Regular council meeting to-night.

Through tickets to Chicago were sold yesterday to H. Hayes and wife of Victoria and to Mrs. Wright of this city.

Sol Smith Russell has fairly "caught on" with "Edgewood Folks," and the theater was again packed last night.

J. O. Mason a few days since shot a bear weighing 250 pounds near his farm house, ten miles north of the city on the Summit road.

Wah Gon, a female Celestial, will be examined in Justice Bushwiler's court to-day, charged with stealing $40 from a country woman.

The north store in the Second street front of Willamette block—Trowbridge's building at the corner of Yamhill and Second—has been leased by Robert Newcomb, who will establish therein his office, as grand recorder of the A. O. U. W., and secretary of the Franklin Building and Loan Association. He will have very commodious and convenient quarters.

PERSONAL.

E. O. Cometh and family of Kalama are registered at the St. Charles.

Judge L. L. McArthur arrived in the city last evening. He will remain here two days.

Mrs. Pfunder has been confined to her bed for the last four days and her condition yesterday is quite critical.

Lieutenant Edward Brock arrived Monday night from Fort Leavenworth, and will join his company at Fort Klamath about September 1.

Gus Frohman of the Madison Square theater management, arrived overland via the Northern Pacific railroad, on a trip of recreation and rest.

YAKIMA NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

ELLENSBURG, W. T., July 13.

With the exception of a few localities the grasshoppers did comparatively little damage this season.

A bank will be started here soon by well known residents of Seattle, who are the principal shareholders.

Col. W. F. Prosser, government timber agent, came here a few days ago to look after Uncle Sam's interests in the timber line.

Lumber has taken a rise of $2 on the thousand feet and builders have to stand the burden. One man owns all the mills on the east side.

Haying has commenced in this vicinity. The crop is not so large as was at one time expected. The timothy is reported to be lighter than last year.

The Wenatchee country, the supposed paradise for fruit, will have no peaches this season, but the grape vines are well loaded with fruit. A fair crop of apples will be had.

From the number of settlers making homes on the east side of the Columbia above Priest rapids there will soon be a call for navigation on the upper river. The best lands will be largely taken by the time winter sets in.

Farm hands will be scarce and wages higher than usual this season to harvest the crops. Many of the laboring population have been drawn off to work on the wagon roads over the mountains and a few have gone to work on the railroad.

The cutting of barley will begin next week. The crop is a fair average one. The wheat crop on the west side of Kittitas is a good average one; but the crop on the east side, as a whole, will be less than an average, as a good many farmers put off irrigating too long after the dry weather set in.

The Valley hotel at this place is being lengthened out and when finished will be double its length on Third street, this large addition on the inner side for a new dining room. The length of the building will be some 85 feet on Main street and 80 on Third street. It is the main hotel of the town—it might be said and the only one.

CONGREGATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF OREGON AND WASHINGTON.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

WALLA WALLA, W. T., July 16.

FOURTH DAY.

The communion sermon was preached by Rev. C. Eells, D. D., from the 15th chapter of Revelation, subject, "The Heavenly Song," after which the Lord's supper was administered by Dr. Atkinson and Mr. Gray.

At 3 o'clock a service was held especially for the children. Mrs. Coblentz first made a few remarks, and then introduced Miss Frances E. Willard, who addressed the audience on her favorite subject—total abstinence from the drinks that make folks drunk. She said that we ought to teach it to the children because we can, because we ought, and because they suffer so, illustrating these points with several interesting incidents. This was a rare treat for those present.

In the evening a home missionary meeting was held, at which addresses were made by Dr. Atkinson on the field; Mr. Knight on the obstacles, and Mr. Coblentz on the work. Dr. Atkinson stated that Mr. Gatleigh had been called from the pastorate at this place to become general missionary for eastern Oregon and Washington.

The meetings have not been as well attended as usual, only about thirty-five ministers, delegates and corresponding members and visitors from abroad being present; but they have been characterized by much more than ordinary harmony and spiritual life—important subjects on which a difference of opinion existed having been disposed of harmoniously.

WHAT A WOMAN THINKS OF THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

PORTLAND, July 16.

The subject of prohibition and the pertinent question, can it prohibit? has indeed become an all absorbing theme among all classes of society, and, like Banquo's ghost, it will not down at the bidding, but is a subject of such vast importance, that with a stubborn firmness it has come to stay.

The question, can prohibitory laws be enforced? sounds like a confession of weakness, or a want of faith in the power of law; and the thought which naturally arises is, why can not such a law be enforced as well as laws against murder, or any other crime?

It is true these laws are broken every day in the year, but swift punishment is meted out to the offenders, and such a suggestion is not for a moment considered, that such laws should be blotted from the statute book because they can not be perfectly enforced.

Again, the thought naturally arises, why not license any other crime, if the prime incentive to every crime named and unnamed is to be licensed and prohibited by the strong arm of government?

The two questions being settled in the affirmative as to the constitutionality of prohibitory laws, and their being in accordance with the best interests of society, the very next step is for our law makers to accede to the will of the people and enact such laws as will forever prohibit the manufacture and sale of those beverages which have proven to be the curse of the nation and of the world; and then the people should use every means to see that they are enforced.

A "cloud of witnesses" may speedily be arrayed to prove the grand results which have followed in those states so fortunate and as wise as to have enacted prohibitory laws for the protection of their citizens.

From Maine, that grand old pioneer in this glorious work of emancipation, comes the cheering verdict, that after a trial of twenty-five years a constitutional amendment, prohibiting forever the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, passed both houses of the legislature of that state, by a vote of 104 to 37, thus proving that the results are most satisfactory, whatever its adversaries may say to the contrary.

Governor Washburn, of Massachusetts, in his annual address to the legislature of 1874, said: "Some honest reformers may urge the plea that the present law is not thoroughly enforced in large cities as a reason for its repeal and the substitution of license; but shall we repeal the laws against gambling, murder, prostitution and burglary simply because they cannot be thoroughly enforced?

"This would be equivalent to saying we will not have any laws unpalatable to the worst classes of society."

After the repeal of this law, so conducive to the safety, happiness and well being of the people, and the substitution of license, Governor Gaston, in his message to the legislature of 1879, said:

"The increase of crime and drunkenness is very marked and decisive. The state prison, jails and houses of correction are being rapidly filled, and will have to be enlarged if the commitments increase as they have since the present law went into force."

Like testimony from most reliable witnesses comes from every other state, where prohibitory laws have been enacted, and from every town where local option has prevailed.

But those who plead for license, acknowledge all we ask of them, when they admit this infamous traffic, to be a dangerous business—that it imperils life and property, and, therefore, it must be kept under proper restraints and penalties. These admissions tell but half the fearful story, for the incentive power to commit any crime—from petty larceny up to the foulest murder lurks within one glass of this beverage of hell, passed from the hand of the licensed dealer in human souls, into the hand of his deluded victim.

In that glass the incendiary lights his torch, the assassin whets his vengeful blade—from that glass the would-be-murderer pours into his soul the murder courage to consummate his deed of blood and the once fond husband and tender father imbibes the fiendish power to lay his hand in brutal wrath upon a loving wife and helpless children.

With these constantly recurring facts before us, with the admitted fact that nine-tenths of all the crime, misery and suffering which the world is heir to is directly traceable to this traffic, we, who have as yet no part, or lot in the matter of enacting the laws, whereby we are governed, must confess that any measure, which in the least degree tends to protect or foster the moral pestilence, which contaminates with its foul presence, the very air we breathe,—surcharged as it is with the most potent elements to compass the utter destruction of not only the body, but the soul of man—does not impress us as bearing the mark of strict justice, or wise statesmanship.

On the contrary, that such a dangerous element, directly opposed to the best interests of the people governed, is permitted to exist, ceases not to excite the greatest wonder; especially in view of not only the unparalleled evils which follow in its train, but of the exasperating fact that the more tenderly and cautiously the hand of government touches this troublesome protege, the more arrogant and lawdefying it becomes, until now it threatens to undermine the moral force of that power, which so weakly or wickedly granted it an existence.

But as in every cloud however dark, there is said to be a silver lining, so we may find the glimmerings of one among the misty folds of even these portentous shadows, for one of the indications of the speedy and final downfall of this self-crowned king, is the storm of righteous indignation to which his insolent demands have stirred the great heart of this nation. The story over again of the historic viper which stung the hand that nourished it; and to make history repeat itself that hand should speedily be raised forth to strangle such an unnatural monster.

Another bright ray of light which emanates directly from a brilliant star of hope, which glitters now upon our moral sky is this. Every indication there is that long retarded justice will ere long, grant to woman the right to register her protest against longer nourishing this hydra-headed viper to strike its poisonous fangs into the hearts of her loved ones. And when to her that right shall be accorded, that myth called "public opinion" will be lifted in a marvelous short space of time, and in a most radical manner, to a temperance standard. When that auspicious day shall dawn (as dawn it will), we give to you our pledge that in comparison with the revolting scenes which daily now we are compelled to witness you will fondly dream that the golden age has truly begun to dawn, as you behold

"Returning Justice lift aloft her scale,
Peace o'er the earth her olive wand extend
And white-robed Innocence from heaven descend."

As in "adamantine chains" this "form of death is bound."

SALEM NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

SALEM, July 17.

Hon. A. F. Wheeler assistant state treasurer, has returned from his trip to Mehama.

According to the latest returns Oregon has 59,076 school children. Crops never fail in Oregon.

Mrs. Governor Moody and daughter returned home yesterday after a somewhat extended trip to California.

Mrs. Dr. Kinney of this city is in Astoria visiting friends, and Dr. Kinney will himself leave in a few days for Tillamook bay in search of rest and recreation.

—Messrs. Mark Skiff, Charles Smith, Loring Adams and Hugh Thompson, returned yesterday from a trip to Mount Hood, Mr. Adams having reached the summit.

The funeral of James Patterson who committed suicide yesterday, took place to-day and was very largely attended by friends and acquaintances of the deceased.

POLK COUNTY NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

INDEPENDENCE, July 17.

Everybody is saving his dollar for the circus, which will be here to-morrow.

More harvesting machines have been sold in this town this season than at any previous year.

Timothy hay is rather scarce, but wild oats and wheat hay is plenty and selling at $8 per ton.

John R. Cooper is burning a kiln of 250,000 brick, the largest portion of which has already been sold to W. C. Brown of Dallas to rebuild the burned district.

The tax for a free school has nearly all been collected without a law suit, although a great many threatened to contest the legality of the levy; but I am a good teacher, County School Superintendent Rigler has been engaged, I hope the school will give satisfaction.

While other articles of their kind are largely adulterated, Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powders hold their unshaken position in the estimation of thousands as the purest, best, most reliable, and healthful. In all particulars they constitute perfect results, they cannot be approached by the various known Baking powders in the market.

Spelling and Spelling.

Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The Virginia duel was about the spelling of the word negro, and the infliction of a flesh wound upon a short-sighted man in hot weather by a first-rate marksman does not appear to have settled the question of orthography. We have misgivings whether the poor man's friend, the shot-gun, would be accepted as indisputable authority.

ENGLAND

THE WIMBLEDON CONTEST.

WIMBLEDON, July 17.—The American team to-day competed in a contest for a cup and £50 presented specially for their competition. They fired to-day at 200, 600 and 600 yards. The highest scores were made by Joyner and Hinman, who tied for the prize. In the contest for the queen's prize Sergeant McKay, of the First Sutherland regiment, was victor. Three targets have been assigned to the Americans for the international match and three to the British. The names of the twelve men who will compose the American team will be announced Friday, the day the match begins.

EQUAL SCORES.

LONDON, July 17.—In the shooting for the Slogan prize at Wimbledon yesterday, five contestants, including Hinman of the American team, and Young and Gibbons, of the English team, made equal scores—48 out of a possible 50.

RACES AT YARMOUTH.

LONDON, July 17.—At the great Yarmouth meeting to-day the race for the maiden plate was won by J. B. Keene's Potosi, Sir J. B. Kees' Agnes Beckwick second, Sir Gerald Codrington's Chorus third. There were five starters. Betting at the start was 1 to 4 against Potosi, 10 to 1 against Agnes Berwick, and 11 to 1 against Chorus. Potosi won by half a length.

VERDICT OF MANSLAUGHTER.

LONDON, July 17.—The coroner's jury in the railway accident near here, where John Porter, a railway employe, was killed, returned a verdict of manslaughter against Peter Gowrie, locomotive. Gowrie has surrendered.

THE SUEZ CANAL AGREEMENT.

LONDON, July 17.—The opposition intend to urge the government to submit the Suez canal agreement to the house of commons without delay.

Earl Selborne, lord high chancellor, said nothing would be more honorable in the English government than to recognize the undoubted rights of a private company which had established itself in the face of great obstacles.

LONDON, July 17.—The Standard says the opinion of liberals concerning the canal agreement has modified, and the government is now most hopeful. De Lesseps was interviewed again yesterday. He said negotiations with the British government had not been accepted, but a reply left as they were when his son left London.

Daily News: Conservatives state that Sir Stafford Northcote will propose a vote of a want of confidence in the ministry, even if the canal agreement is withdrawn.

MORE DEATHS THAN ARE REPORTED.

LONDON, July 17.—Dispatches from Cairo agree that the number of deaths there from cholera far exceeds the number given in the official report. A correspondent estimates that sixty deaths occurred from cholera in Cairo Monday.

TRYING TO SELL MONACO.

LONDON, July 17.—A Marseilles letter states that the Prince of Monaco is negotiating with France for the sale of that principality for 10,000,000 francs, subject to the recognition of a gambling concession for twenty-seven years.

IRELAND.

PARNELLITE CANDIDATE ELECT.

DUBLIN, July 17.—Polling for a member of parliament for Wexford borough took place to-day. Considerable animosity was shown towards The O'Connor Don, liberal, and he was hooted at as he drove through the streets. Sexton, member of parliament for Sligo, was present in the interest of William Redmond, Parnellite candidate, and implored the people to preserve order. The O'Connor Don's committee rooms were smashed. Many policemen arrived this afternoon to assist in maintaining order. The election resulted in a victory for Redmond, who secured 3019 votes, against 66 for The O'Connor Don.

After the result of the polling had been declared The O'Connor Don drove along the street, under escort. The party were assailed by a mob and the police charged the crowd with batons. Several persons were wounded—one through the lungs. Thirty policemen were injured, twelve seriously. Some of the policemen were isolated and then knocked down and trampled upon. Healy and Sexton finally undertook to restore order, and the police were withdrawn. In a speech this evening Healy said the police behaved savagely.

FRANCE.

PANAMA CANAL MEETING.

PARIS, July 17.—The Panama Canal Company met to-day. The report of De Lesseps repeated his former statement that the canal would be finished at the end of 1888, and also stated that the chief government engineer would assume the direction of active work on the canal, which would shortly be undertaken. Referring to the Suez canal project, De Lesseps said: "We have negotiated loyally, without relinquishing any of our rights."

THE COUNT DE CHAMBORD'S CONDITION.

PARIS, July 17.—Dr. Vulpian and other doctors had a consultation to-day, after which they issued a bulletin stating that the improvement in the condition of Count de Chambord continued. Dr. Vulpian has consented to remain a day longer. He stated that he is convinced the count's disease is not cancer, but inflammation of the stomach, causing a thickening of the tissue.

DE LESSEPS INDEPENDENT.

PARIS, July 17.—Gaulois says De Lesseps declares that the loan for building a second Suez canal can be raised in France and other countries if England refuses to advance the money.

WADDINGTON GOES TO ENGLAND.

PARIS, July 17.—Waddington has been appointed ambassador to England in place of Tissot, who resigns on account of ill health.

EGYPT.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST CHOLERA.

CAIRO, July 17.—The sanitary commission is endeavoring to purify Cairo and isolate houses where the cholera has appeared, but if the disease gets a firm hold in the city it is impossible that it will be allowed to take its course, and that great precaution only will be taken to check its progress.

CAIRO, July 17.—The cordons around infected districts have all been abandoned.

ALEXANDRIA, July 17.—Cholera is spreading generally throughout the country and the sanitary commission is taking steps to isolate Alexandria. Twenty-eight deaths from the disease occurred at Damietta yesterday and thirty-eight at Mansurah.

ALEXANDRIA, July 17.—Twelve deaths from cholera occurred at Cairo yesterday, and forty-two at Mensurah. The sanitary commission propose to isolate Alexandria.

ALEXANDRIA, July 17.—The case of two English women here, suspected of suffering from cholera, has been proved to be a case of diarrhea. The patient died because of her removal to a hospital. As there is much doubt that the epidemic is true Asiatic cholera it is possible that wrong treatment is killing hundreds of sufferers. A European commission are urgently requested to investigate the matter.

GERMANY.

THE PROTEST APPROVED.

BERLIN, July 17.—The National Zeitung approves the protest of the English people against the Suez canal agreement, and proposes that all the maritime powers buy the canal and place it under control of an international commission.

CANADA.

THE STARTING HOUR EXTENDED

PRESCOTT, Ont., July 17.—Hanlan and Ross have agreed to extend the time of starting from 3 to 6:45 P. M. to-morrow; suitable water failing the race to take place between 3 and 6:45 P. M. the day following.

WEST INDIES.

DUTIES ON TOBACCO AND SILVER.

HAVANA, July 17.—Advices from San Domingo say that congress has fixed the export duty on tobacco at $1 [illegible] per quintal, for shipment made during the period from February to June, and only 40 cents per quintal for shipment between June and February. The object is to prevent the exportation of impure tobacco. Congress has also put an import duty of 12 per cent on Mexican silver.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Washington Territory.

New Tacoma is promised a broom factory by August 1st.

Ellensburg postoffice has received its money order supplies.

None of the Cummins' murderers have as yet taken an appeal.

George Dormer had a leg badly crushed in a saw mill near Ellensburg last week.

A petition will soon be circulated asking for a mail route between Ellensburg and Snoqualmie.

During the month of June there were entered at the Yakima land office, under the timber culture law, 3600 acres; under the pre-emption law, 7000 acres; under the desert law, 14,300 acres, and under the homestead law, [illegible] acres. The greater part of the land included in the desert entries lies in the vicinity of the Lower Yakima.

Tacoma Ledger:—There are about 170 acres of hops, old and new, in the Puyallup valley and tributaries this year, but good judges report that owing to the unusually dry weather not half a crop is expected. In general the yards look well, but the growers report that the hops have not filled well, and, therefore, even if rain should now fall it would not avail anything, as the season is too far gone.

Dayton Chronicle: On our recent visit to Garfield county we made diligent inquiry in regard to the crop outlook and found that fall grain was better than average. Fall wheat that had been already threshed was yielding thirty-five bushels to the acre and barley sixty-five bushels. Spring rain will bring about half a crop on the lower hills while that growing within ten miles of the mountains will yield much better.

Congress at its last session made an appropriation for the resurvey of certain Indian reservations, among them the Tulalip, Swinomish and Lummi reservations. H. B. Stewart, deputy United States surveyor, is now engaged in the work, and having completed the survey of the Tulalip reservation, is now engaged on the Swinomish, from which he will proceed to the Lummi. Some disagreement exists among the Indians on the Swinomish reservation on account of the action of a chief named Joseph, who lays claim to the tract embracing the Indian village opposite La Conner.

Western Oregon.

Smith, the convict whose arm was amputated on account of Stillwell's rifle, is improving very fast, in fact his wound is very nearly well.

The body of a man was found Sunday in the Columbia below Tongue Point. Fifty dollars was found on the body, but no clue as to the man's name.

Bartholomew Hailey, aged 81 years, died on the 14th inst. The deceased lived six miles northeast of Salem. He was born in Bedford county, Virginia, November 2, 1806, and crossed the plains in 1847.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

Third Saengerfest.

BUFFALO, July 16.—The grand reception concert of the twenty-third Saengerfest of the North American Saengerbund, was held this evening at the music hall, by the German Young Men's Association and was an unqualified success. The attendance was nearly 5000. The exercises opened with a grand overture, followed by the festival ode, after which Governor Cleveland delivered an address of half an hour, complimenting the association on its grand attendance. POLITICAL ITEMS.

If, as is reported, Denis Kearney and Dorsey are both going to join the democracy, that party deserves the condolence of the nation for its hard luck.

Nobody seems disposed to resurrect the Hon. Bill English of Indiana as an adornment of another presidential ticket. The Hon. Bill is left out of all calculations with great enthusiasm.

The Boston Herald fears that the only permanently successful "harmonizer" in the executive chair will be a president who has the power of repeating the miracle of the loaves and fishes.

THE PROFESSION A UNIT.

MR. C. H. DRAPER of No. 222 Main street, Worcester, Mass., volunteers the following:

"Having occasion recently to use a remedy for kidney disease, I applied to my druggist, Mr. B. D. Williams, of Lincoln Square this city, and requested him to furnish me the best kidney medicine that he knew of, and he handed me a bottle of Hunt's Remedy, stating that it was considered the best because he had sold many bottles of it to his customers in Worcester, and they all speak of it in the highest terms, and pronounce it always reliable. I took the bottle home and commenced taking it, and find that it does the work effectually; and I am pleased, to recommend to all who have kidney or liver disease the use of Hunt's Remedy, the sure cure."

April 11, 1883.

WE ALL SAY SO.

MR. GEORGE A. BURDETT No. 105 Front street, Worcester, Mass., has just sent us the following, directly to the point:

"Being afflicted with ailments to which all humanity is subject sooner or later, I read carefully the advertisement regarding the remarkable curative powers of Hunt's Remedy and as it seems to apply to my case exactly, I purchased a bottle of the medicine at Jannery's drug store in this city, and having used it with most beneficial results in my own case, my wife and son also commenced its use, and it has most decidedly improved their health, and we shall continue its use in our family under such favorable results."

April 17, 1883.

DRUGGIST'S EVIDENCE.

MR. GEORGE W. HOLCOMB, druggist, 129 and 131 Congress street, Troy, N. Y., writes April 7, 1883:

"I am constantly selling Hunt's Remedy for diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder, and urinary organs, to my trade and friends, and find that it gives general satisfaction to all who use it."

HALL'S

Vegetable Sicilian

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

Is not a triumph of science, but is a revelation through the instinct of the untutored savage, and is a complete antidote to all kinds of Blood Poison and Skin Humor.

Swift's Specific has cured me of Scrofula which is hereditary in my family. I have suffered with it for many years, and have tried a great many physicians and all sorts of treatment, but to no purpose, and when I began to take Swift's Specific I was in a horrible condition; but, thanks to this great remedy, I am rid of the disease. There is no doubt that it is the greatest medicine in existence, and I hope any who doubt will write to me.

E. C. HAWES, Jr., Clarkesville, Ga.

After suffering twenty-five years with a painful Dry Tetter, and trying many physicians, I was at last relieved by the use of Swift's Specific, and I cheerfully recommend it to all similarly afflicted.
